Welcome to IDOARCH!
We're excited about your interest in submitting your project to IDOARCH, a platform committed to showcasing free architecture content and organizing online competitions for architects, designers, and enthusiasts worldwide. IDO-ARCH fosters creativity, knowledge-sharing, and collaboration, where you can explore inspiring designs and participate in free architecture competitions. Join us in shaping the future of architecture!

What makes a project suitable for IDOARCH?
We seek projects that stand out in originality, functionality, and relevance to current architectural trends—whether through innovative materials, sustainability, or unique solutions to design challenges.

Does every project get featured?
Not every project submitted will be published on our platform. Each submission goes through a review process where our editorial team carefully evaluates the quality, innovation, and overall impact of the project. We aim to highlight work that pushes the boundaries of architecture and design, offering value to both our professional audience and the broader community.

How do I submit my project to IDOARCH?
To submit your project, visit the "Submit a Project" page on our website, where you can download the guidelines for submission. Once you've gathered all the required files (project description, images, drawings, etc.), upload them as one folder on the same page.

What materials do I need to provide?
To help our team evaluate your project fully, Please submit the following:

Project Description: Overview, objectives, design process, and key features (300-500 Words).
Images: At least 10 high-quality JPGs (minimum 2880px wide).
Drawings/Plans: Essential plans (floor plans, sections, elevations) in JPG format (min. 2880px wide), grayscale only. Each JPG file should contain a single plan only with no labels, annotations, or borders.

What happens after I submit my project, and when will it be published?
After submitting, you'll get a confirmation email. We'll review your project within 5 days and contact you if we need more information. Once approved, your project will be published within 10 days, and you'll receive a notification with the link to view it.

Does it cost anything to submit or publish a project on IDOARCH?
No, submitting and publishing your project on IDOARCH is completely free.

Can I control the layout or order of the content?
While we value your input, the final layout and order of the materials are determined by our editorial team. We organize content in a way that best showcases the project's unique aspects to engage and inspire our audience. Rest assured that our goal is to present your work in the best possible light.

Can I request changes after publication?
If you spot any errors in the published content, such as incorrect credits or false information, please contact us at info@idoarch.com. We will make one correction per submission, so it's important to review your materials carefully before sending them.

What rights do I retain, and do I need permissions to submit a project?
By submitting, you grant IDOARCH the right to publish your project, while retaining ownership and full credit. Ensure you have obtained permissions from all collaborators, including photographers and clients.

Ready to inspire the world with your work? Submit your project today and join our global community!